Embassy Is Heavily Guarded by Special Russian Troops as Rioters Clamor for Blood.

SARAJEVO SPECTER AGAIN LIFTS HEAD

Armed Strangers in Moscow End Communist Debate With Explosives; 26 Seriously Injured.

Moscow, June 8.—A huge demonstration against Poland growing out of the assassination of the soviet minister to Warsaw, started late this afternoon in the streets leading to the Polish embassy.

The demonstrators marched in increasing numbers until late tonight, shouting war, and halting traffic.

The Polish embassy was heavily guarded by special Russian troops.

GHOST OF SARAJEVO IS SEEN IN POLAND

Warsaw, June 8.—The body of Peter Volkoff, Russian minister to Warsaw, who was murdered by a 19-year-old student, is lying in full state in the hall of the Russian embassy, while outside hundreds are passing quietly through the streets and diplomats are anxiously conferring, awed by the memory of a similar murder at Sarajevo in June, 1914, which led to the big world war.

The population believes the Russians are ready to rush down their infantry, cavalry and heavy artillery to punish Poland for the murder committed on Polish soil. But the diplomats keep up an urbane optimism. The danger in the situation is increased by the note from Maxim Litvinoff, assistant commissar of foreign affairs, which arrived early today, having been entrusted to Patrick, the Polish minister in Moscow.

Without awaiting details, the note throws responsibility for the crime on Poland, alleging the Polish government failed to take the necessary steps to curb illegal activities of the Russian counter-revolutionaries.

It further charges that the murder is only a new chapter of a pre-conceived plan against soviet Russia. It asserts the new campaign began with the raid on the soviet embassy in Peking, blockade of the consulate in Shanghai, raid on the trade delegation in London, and English break of diplomatic relations.

LONDON ANXIOUS OVER SITUATION

London, June 8.—(P)—The assassination of the soviet minister to Poland, M. Volkoff, is regarded here as creating a dangerous situation between soviet Russia and Poland. Developments were being watched with anxiety today.

"It does not create surprise," the Daily News comments, "that as Moscow reports, Russian opinion sees the hidden hand of Great Britain behind the assassin's revolver. It will not be surprising if Moscow eventually holds British statesmen directly responsible for the murder. Nonsensical as such

Rev. W. W. Memminger Given D. D. Degree By Washington & Lee

Lexington, Va., June 8.—(Special). An interesting and picturesque feature of the commencement exercises of Washington and Lee university was the conferring of the degree of D. D. upon Rev. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints Episcopal church of Atlanta.

Dr. Memminger delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Washington and Lee last Sunday. The chapel was crowded and his address was warmly received.

The delivery of the degree of doctor of divinity on Dr. Memminger on the closing day of commencement was most impressive. He has been a conspicuous feature during the commencement exercises upon the conclusion of which he returned to Atlanta.

British Ire Directed Chiefly at Air Ministry—Lindbergh Sees First Whale Dines With Crew.

LINDBERGH URGED TO CHANGE PLANES

New York, June 8.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was urged in a radiogram sent him today by Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the mayor's reception committee, not to fly his plane, Spirit of St. Louis, from Washington, but instead to use a seaplane which the army will place at his disposal.

The reason for the request, Mr. Whalen said, was that it would require 3,000 policemen and 1,500 troops to maintain order at Miller field where Lindbergh would land, and that every available policeman will be required in New York.

London, June 8.—The second transatlantic dash has stirred up a hornet's nest in London and is regarded as a "definite challenge to British aviation," according to opinions expressed today. While there is no attempt to belittle the great feat of the American birdmen, an extremely bitter sentiment has arisen, directed chiefly against the air ministry.

The ministry not only is accused of lack of official support, but also of crushing initiative by crippling civil flying through countless restrictions in an effort to maintain absolute control of all branches of flying.

It is pointed out that had the American transatlantic planes been manufactured in England, in all probability they would have been prohibited from flying more than three miles from the airfield due to the design and construction not having been approved by the air ministry.

No little fuel is added to the blaze by the time reckoning given Flight Lieutenants C. R. Carr and L. M. Gillman at Victoria station last night following their heroic flight, covering only 185 miles less than Colonel Lindbergh. The British aviators were forced down on the Gulf of Persia during their attempt at a non-stop flight from London to Karachi, India.

Twelve persons, including reporters, greeted them at the station while 250,000 frantically welcomed "Lindy" 10 days ago and 60,000 are acclaiming Chamberlain in Berlin today.

Another red flag waved in the face of aviation backers here is the recent order placed by the Canadian government for six Fokker type planes with the Atlantic Aircraft Corporation of New York to serve as photographic survey machines. The airplane manufacturers resent passing them up, claiming there are plenty of British types equally suitable. The planes ordered, known as the universal type, now are used daily in the air mail service between New York and Boston and are fitted with engines similar to those of Colonel Lindbergh's and Chamberlain's machines.

COLONEL LINDBERGH SEES FIRST WHALE

U. S. Cruiser Memphis, June 8.—(P)—The first whale that America's flying ace, Charles Lindbergh, ever saw, came up today and looked the cruiser Memphis over. The first one was followed by others, and the birdman got a new thrill out of the experience.

The monarch of the deep was sighted off the starboard bow soon after the ship had started on its way.

2d' Autremont Brothers Held In Ohio City

World-Wide Search for Slayers of Four Men Comes to End.

Steubenville, Ohio, June 8.—(P)—Ray and Roy d'Autremont, wanted in Oregon in connection with the killing of a postal clerk and three trainmen of a passenger train holding four years ago, were arrested here today by federal agents and local police.

The twin brothers, for whom a world wide search has been conducted, have been working in a steel mill here. Both admitted their identity when confronted by officers and were taken to the local jail where they were held in custody of a federal officer.

The youths said they had been working in the Wheeling Steel Corporation mill here since January. The brothers are accused of dynamiting a passenger train in a mail holdup at Siskiyou, Oregon, in 1923.

About the time of the arrest of Hugh d'Autremont, the third member of the trio, who was captured in the Philippines some time ago, federal agents received a tip that Ray and Roy were in hiding in eastern Ohio. The men were located a short time ago and had been under surveillance by United States department of justice agents. They were working in the steel mill under the names of Elmer and Clarence Goodwill.

J. A. CONWELL OUTLINES BILL TO CO-OP BODY

Bill Designed To Prevent Excessive Price Fluctuations by Control of Market Surplus.

PRESIDENT CLAIMS CABINET BACKING

Proposed Legislation Is Presented for Discussion and Reaction of Agricultural Bodies.

BY COMER HOWELL.

President Coolidge, the secretary of agriculture and leaders in both parties at Washington have approved a farm relief bill which will be presented to congress at its next session and which was outlined to members of the Georgia Cotton Growers Co-operative association, according to a statement made at a meeting Wednesday morning of the association held in Atlanta by J. A. Conwell, president of the organization.

In the main the new bill will carry provisions designed to promote the orderly marketing of agricultural products, both in interstate and foreign commerce; to prevent excessive price fluctuations by the control and disposal of agricultural surpluses; to minimize speculation and waste in marketing and to encourage organization of producers of agricultural products.

Other phases of farm relief legislation were discussed by United States Senator Walter F. George, M. B. Wadsworth, governor of the federal reserve bank, James A. Holloman, of the constitution, and Congressman Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, who is himself author of a farm relief bill.

Approved by Cabinet.

One of the outstanding features of the meeting was the assurance given Congressman Crisp by Mr. Conwell that the bill he presented was approved both by the president and his cabinet. Mr. Conwell said he had the approval of the administration. He stated that he, himself, had a farm relief bill which he wanted to work and operate with the administration in control of congress and told Mr. Conwell that if the proposed measure had the support of the administration that he would drop his own bill, the Crisp bill, and support the proposed measure.

DR. KING FREED ON PEONAGE COUNT

Negro Who Made Sensational Charges in Case Is Not Placed on Stand To Testify.

Athens, Ga., June 8.—(P)—Dr. W. R. King, prominent physician-farmer of Oglethorpe county, was found not guilty by a federal court jury here early tonight of a charge of peonage. The jury deliberated about an hour and a half.

The trial opened Monday and was featured by testimony of various employees and former employees on the farm who told of the treatment accorded them by the accused man.

James Felton, a negro former employee of Dr. King, who was summoned here by the government following Felton's sensational charges to officers in Danville, Va., that he had knowledge of five murders on the King farm and that armed guards kept 50 or more negroes at work against their will, returned to Virginia without being called. District Attorney B. S. Deuver told the court that "it was determined from an interview with Felton that he was not a witness that could tell the jury anything of value."

Assistant United States District Attorney Russell Scott, of Macon, revealed after the verdict was read that Felton confessed he made his charges of peonage on the King farm to escape a charge of vagrancy on the farm at Danville. He repudiated his story that he was shanghaied to the farm with his automobile broken down while he was en route to the state penitentiary, asserting that Dr. King had "bought" him out of the Atlanta jail and that he had worked on his farm for some time after that.

When taken to the Oglethorpe county farm, where he had told officers he could point out the graves of the five negroes he said had been slain, he turned to a deputy marshal and said: "I might as well come clean. I never saw any killings on this farm, and never heard of any."

Dr. King took the stand today and entered unqualified denial to charges of peonage conditions on the farm he formerly occupied in Oglethorpe county.

ENTRA SESSION IS UNDECIDED, SAYS COOLIDGE

President Corrects Impression Made by Statement Given Out by Senator Smoot.

TOO EARLY TO ACT IS COOLIDGE VIEW

In View of Heavy Program, Smoot Advocates Assembly Six Weeks Before Regular Date.

Washington, June 8.—(P)—Flat prediction of a special session of congress in October by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, brought a quick reaction today at the white house where it was announced informally that President Coolidge had made no definite decision.

The Utah senator confidentially declared after a long conference with the president that "there is no doubt" a special session would be called in the fall. When newspapers quoting him reached the white house, however, word was hurriedly sent from the presidential office that Mr. Coolidge had not committed himself and considered it entirely too early to decide whether a special session should be called.

Discussed Session.

The president discussed the special session question with Mr. Smoot, who it had been indicated at the white house, is one of the congressional leaders he desires to consult in determining his course. In making it known that the president had not arrived at a decision, Secretary Sanders said that no discussion was intended for Senator Smoot, and that when a decision is reached, it would be announced at the white house.

With a heavy program facing the new congress, Senator Smoot advocated its assembly at least six weeks before the regular December meeting date. He is chairman of the finance committee, which would handle in the senate any tax reduction bill and he explained that the early meeting would go far toward relieving the jam also put forward by the Utah senator as a necessity for a special session.

Moreover, he said that the senate faces another long row over the passage of the deficiency appropriation bill which was sidetracked by the senate filibuster at the close of last session leaving government departments seriously crippled for funds also was put forward by the Utah senator as a necessity for a special session.

ATLANTA BANKER RECEIVES UNANIMOUS NOMINATION AT INTERNATIONAL MEETING HELD AT MEMPHIS.

Memphis, Tenn., June 8.—(P)—With the routine business of their 1927 convention out of the way, Kiwanis of the United States and Canada turned tonight to the contemplation of the future—the outlining of the Kiwanis policy for the ensuing year.

Most of today's sessions of the convention were taken up with the reports of various committees and addresses by several of the international trustees. Tonight the delegates and their wives and sweethearts carried on with the round of social functions prepared for them by their hosts.

In an address before the convention this afternoon, A. Heber Winder, of Riverside, Calif., declared that the "Kiwanis motto is showing the red sign of danger" through its membership losses. He said the international had lost more than one-third of its entire membership during the past year and declared that one-half of the

POPE, CARDINAL DAUGHERTY TWO PRELATES SPEND HAPPY HOUR Talk of Dante, Polo, Manzoni

Rome, June 8.—(P)—Pope Pius, in a farewell private audience today with Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, showed his special predilection for geography, literature and books on travel and revealed that the three works which he always keeps in his desk for study and rest are in Italian poet and novelist of the 19th century.

The interview lasted for more than an hour.

The pontiff was desirous to hear particularly of the cardinal's visits to Japan, Korea, Mongolia and Manchuria over the route followed by Marco Polo centuries ago, passing through the same gate of the great wall of China 125 miles northwest of Peking as did the great Venetian navigator and explorer.

When the pope heard that Cardinal Dougherty, with his nieces, was going to visit a place on Lake Como mentioned in the great Italian classic, "I Promessi Sposi," by Alessandro

CARROLL IS FACING INSANITY, ATLANTA PHYSICIAN ASSERTS

Reporter "Orderly" Gets Carroll Yarn

(Following is the first of three installments on Earl Carroll's stay in Greenville, S. C., hospital, written by Martin Sommers, special representative of The Atlanta Constitution, sent to Greenville to keep in close touch with the producer's condition. Mr. Sommers secured a job as orderly in the hospital. In the current installment he relates how he obtained the position and the hospital gossip on Carroll's condition. The second, which will be published Friday, will deal directly with Carroll's condition, as Mr. Sommers observed it. The third, to appear Saturday morning, will reveal hitherto unknown features of the United States' surveillance of Carroll during his stay in Greenville.)

When I went to work as night orderly in the Greenville, S. C., hospital on the night of May 31, one of the physicians there, Dr. C. B. Earle, said:

"If Mr. Carroll should be taken to prison now I believe he would either go insane or kill himself."

That same night a nurse, whose name I will not mention because she thought she was merely gossiping with a harmless and rather weak-minded drudge, said:

"There's nothing the matter with Mr. Carroll. If you or I would lie in bed for eight weeks and not eat much, we'd be weak, too."

Eight days of the only night orderly caring, as I speak, for the 30 male patients in that hospital convinced me they were both right—partially.

I learned there was nothing organically wrong with the playboy who played at perjury so tragically. Physically, he was, and is, as sound as a man who lost 15 pounds lying in bed eight weeks could possibly be.

But certainly there was and is something mentally wrong with a man who starved himself, a man who lay there silently in mortal dread of a mere year and a day in a prison that senators, governors and congressmen have declined to call home. A man

"You see," said the pontiff, pointing to his desk, "I always keep three books for study and rest—the Bible, Dante and Manzoni." He then went on quoting from memory passages from his favorite authors.

The pope also spoke of the wonderful collection of Dante editions and Dante literature at Harvard university and other American universities with which he is most familiar, as well as of the great edition of Dante in many volumes which is being prepared at Milan.

Returning to geography and travel, the pontiff said he had read many times Marco Polo's travels and that he was glad Cardinal Dougherty was rereading them now.

Doctor Derides Statement That "Nothing Is Matter With" Producer. Fears Serious Results.

BROADWAYFARER PUT IN HOSPITAL

Vanities King Brighter After First Day in Pen, Warden Snook Says. Makes Trip on Stretcher.

BY HERB MCUSKER.

Earl Carroll will leave Atlanta penitentiary an insane man, if he completes his sentence of a year and a day.

This declaration was made Wednesday by a prominent Atlanta physician who has been in continuous touch with the New York theater man's condition since the day he was removed from a train in Greenville, S. C., while en route to the prison here. The doctor, one of the leading specialists of the south, has made numerous visits to Carroll in Greenville.

Carroll, wasted and in an apparent semi-comatose condition, giving no heed to his removal from the train at the Terminal station at 5:25 o'clock Wednesday morning, except for a slight movement of one hand and possibly a whispered word when his wife spoke to him for the last time in the ambulance a moment before he was driven to the penitentiary, was placed in a private ward in the prison hospital on his arrival there.

His condition was not aggravated by his trip from Greenville, Warden John W. Snook said Wednesday.

SEVERE MENTAL DISORDER

An emphatic denial of published reports to the effect that "nothing is the matter with Carroll," was made by the Atlanta physician who added that his "incarceration will in all probability precipitate a most serious and lasting mental disorder which will terminate disastrously."

The physician declared that he is certain the government physicians had not reported to Attorney General Sargent that Carroll was not suffering from any disease.

Because the ethics of the medical profession provide for the divorce of publicity and administration of office, the physician requested that his name be withheld in making an official statement to The Constitution on behalf of the Carroll family physicians.

2 AMERICANS HELD AS CHINA PLOTTERS

Shanghai, China, June 8.—(AP)—An American lawyer, W. Worthington, and an Italian named Jovino were arrested this afternoon by the police of the international settlement here for alleged illegal dealing in arms.

It is reported that the men in question entered into negotiations with a Chinese "general" who really was a detective, about a month ago for the sale of a quantity of arms and ammunition.

The negotiations progressed until this afternoon, when it is alleged, they arranged to meet at the "general's" house for the purpose of consummating the deal.

Two foreign detectives watched the proceedings through a knothole. It is alleged that the accused men produced two mausers and 1,000 rounds of ammunition, upon which they were arrested and handed over to their respective consulates.

Peters Street Widening Needs Sanction of Only Few Owners

Office on Spring street, opened Wednesday, where J. L. McCord, agent for the city, will make arrangements with property-holders for Peters street widening.

Marking the concerted effort of property owners on Peters street in rallying to support of the city in widening and repaving that street, J. L. McCord, appointed agent for the city in the undertaking, Wednesday morning opened offices on Spring street, where detailed arrangements will be made with property holders.

Added impetus was given to the movement, which will connect West End with the center of downtown Atlanta, when McCord outlined to two groups of property owners at meetings last Friday and Tuesday in the chamber of commerce building the new plan which has been worked out providing for immediate completion of widening and repaving Peters street with no cost to landowners along the unfinished part of the street other than the surrender of the strip of land required for widening purposes.

Fulton county authorities are prepared to take the street, and the city to cut away the present store fronts, rebuild the new fronts, lay sidewalks and make sewer connections and other improvements at no cost to property owners and in exchange for deeds to the strips of land along the frontage that will be used to widen the street.

With the initial presentation of the new plan, an active interest was shown on the part of property holders to aid the city in pushing the matter to completion, the agent asserted. "When the remainder of Peters street is widened and repaved, as provided for, it will constitute a direct route, free from railroad crossings, from West End into downtown Atlanta at the Spring street viaduct," Mr. McCord explained. "It will cost the city $58,000 to widen the street, but the city is ready to expend $62,000 for the paving. Property owners along the newly paved portion of the street are pledged to contribute their share of the cost of the widening project, and the city will be able to complete the widening project by the end of the year."

In spite of the fact that the undertaking was almost abandoned on account of the heavy burden that property holders would have to bear if the tax zone method was enforced to raise funds for the project, with the inspection of the new plan the majority of property holders have rallied to the movement and the proposed traffic artery will most likely be started early this summer and be a reality by the fall. As matters stand now it is only necessary to complete the details with individual property holders for deed to the required strip of land to the city and this has already been approved by the majority of land holders.

For facilitating matters in getting all land holders together on the project and enabling the work to start immediately, offices have been opened at 46 Spring street, in charge of W. R. Edwards. The offices are provided with maps and other equipment and Mr. Edwards will be there from 10 to 5 o'clock every afternoon to work out the details individually with all property owners. All persons interested in the undertaking are invited to seek information at the office. The telephone is Walnut 5195.

The part of Peters street to be widened and paved extends from the Walker street junction to Park street. The widening of the street is flanked by railroad tracks the entire tax burden would have fallen on owners of the right hand side property, going out towards Park street, were the new plan not substituted for the taxing zone system. When completed the new artery will relieve traffic congestion in the "bottle neck" of Whitehall street, south of Mitchell street. Mr. McCord expressed the desire in behalf of the property holders as a whole that individual owners make arrangements with the city office as possible to prevent any delay in the undertaking.

HUNDREDS DRIVEN TO REFUGEE CAMPS

New Orleans, June 8.—(AP)—Rising waters in sections of Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois drove hundreds of persons to levees and refugee camps today.

Disaster relief headquarters of the American Red Cross was informed that 1,100 persons are in the refugee camp at Marianna, Ark., and that refugees were pouring out of the St. Francis valley in the vicinity of Fort Smith, Mo. More than 1,000 families were expected to be affected by the new rise, although field workers were unable yet to predict the dimensions of the new disaster.

A six-inch rise was registered in the bottom lands of the St. Francis basin yesterday. The waters were rising higher today.

Union county, Illinois, was reported virtually evacuated. Livestock and other property has been moved from the danger zone, but no refugee camps have been established. Most of the persons have fled to homes of relatives and friends in the hills.

Red Cross workers at Blytheville, Ark., reported to headquarters here that water has risen seven and one-half inches in the lowlands and that gardens planted by the Red Cross to grow food supplies are rapidly going under water. It was announced today that many families would be removed permanently from the area since it will be impossible to grow any kind of crop this year.

TERRORIST OUTRAGES SHOCK MOSCOW

Moscow, June 8.—(AP)—Two terrorist outrages within 24 hours have shocked the Soviet, particularly communist circles, and given cause for increased vigilance. Not since the winter of 1918, when an attempt was made by social revolutionists to bomb the Moscow committee of the communists, have the terrorists dared to defy that dreaded organization.

Last night 20 persons, including 10 young women, all members of the Leningrad Communist Discussion club, were injured when two bombs were thrown into the hall where they were meeting. The bomb throwers escaped, firing revolvers as they ran. The fact that no one was killed was due apparently to the circumstances that the bombs contained merely gas and a few missiles. Most of the injured suffered contusions and lacerations.

The Leningrad bombing was followed by the blowing up of a conveyance in which Vice Chief Opanaky of the state police of white Russia, and two assistants were conveying Lieutenant Yani, of the Polish intelligence service, suspected of espionage, to Minsk from the Polish frontier.

Opanaky and his assistants were killed and Yani was seriously injured by the explosion of a bomb which had been placed on a railway by which they were traveling in a gas driven repair car. Investigation appeared to indicate that the work was that of counter-revolutionists.

The Adventure Called Life

The fiction writer would have us believe that real life is a colorless, hum-drum affair. So he attempts to improve on reality by creating characters and situations out of his fanciful mind.

But it is the adventure of life itself that claims our deepest interest. We are fascinated by what our neighbors are thinking and doing. Their hopes, fears, joys, sorrows, temptations and struggles are much like our own, and are therefore of immediate and vital concern.

That is why the personal narratives of human experience which appear in True Story Magazine have such a widespread and ever-growing appeal. For example, there are 16 thrilling features in the July issue. Your newsdealer has it. Get your copy today!

HAMMOND TRIAL TO START TODAY

Harold Hammond, charged with the murders recently of Mrs. Lottie Belle Ingram and her 18-month-old son, Floyd, will face a jury in Judge Irvin E. Moore's division of Fulton superior court this morning.

The bodies of Mrs. Ingram and her infant son were found in a bed in the Ingram home on Ashby street by the city detectives on the night of the slayings. He was a fugitive for several weeks.

During a "voice" test conducted by city detectives, neighbors of the Ingram's said that Hammond's voice sounded exactly like that of the mysterious stranger who had inquired in the Ingram neighborhood for the location of the home on the night of the murder.

The defendant will be represented by Attorney Carl Lancaster while assistant solicitor will prosecute the case in behalf of the state.

DRY AGENT IS SHOT WHILE FORCING HOME

Baltimore, June 8.—(AP)—Charles C. Rouse, federal prohibition agent, was shot in the abdomen and seriously wounded today during a raid in north-east Baltimore. Hospital surgeons said, after an operation, that Rouse's condition was critical but he had a chance for recovery. The bullet, which was not found, perforated the intestines.

Rouse's assailant, who fired several shots from a house which the enforcement officer was attempting to enter, escaped as did one of two other men. Laverie Giuseppe, 18, the only one taken, is held at central police station while detectives sought the other two.

Rouse has been a member of the dry force here for about five years.

Shepherd Is Sued For Wife's Share Of Ward's Estate

Chicago, June 8.—(AP)—William Darling Shepherd today faced another attack upon his claims as chief beneficiary under the will of William Nelson McClintock, millionaire ward of his wife, when Miss Isabelle Pope filed suit to be recognized as McClintock's legal widow.

Miss Pope obtained a marriage license to be married to McClintock while the youth was dying of typhoid fever but he lapsed into a final coma before the ceremony could be performed.

In her bill Miss Pope contended that but for fraudulent conduct and misrepresentation by Shepherd, she would have inherited all of McClintock's personal property, one-half of the real estate and a dower interest in the remainder of the $1,200,000 estate.

At the murder trial which resulted in Shepherd's acquittal on a charge of having fed McClintock typhoid germs, Miss Pope testified she and several distant cousins of the "millionaire orphan" had agreed to divide "fifty-fifty" in the event the will could be broken. Under it Miss Pope was left an $8,000 annuity to be paid by Shepherd.

Since then the cousins have filed suit to break the will, alleging Shepherd exercised undue influence over his wife's ward. Their suit named Miss Pope as a defendant. Her bill made public today was in the nature of a reply as well as a cross suit.

She further asked that a receiver be appointed for the estate by the court and that Shepherd be forced to give an account of all moneys spent and be restrained from any expenditure.

Italy Unconcerned Over Albanian Row With Jugo-Slavia

Belgrade, June 8.—The Italian ambassador today declared that Italy regards the conflict between Jugo-Slavia and Albania as concerning only those countries, in spite of the newspapers openly charging that Italy was behind the Albanian action in arresting the Serbian dragoman at Tirana.

Jugo-Slavia is unpleasantly surprised to learn that Albania stole a march and already has brought the conflict before the League of Nations.

Macon Minister Gives Author's Name of "My Mother" Poem

Among the many hundred favorable comments on our Mother's Day advertisement, in which we reproduced a poem, "My Mother," stating that the author was unknown, we have a letter from Rev. S. J. Baker, of Macon, Ga., reading:

"—and it appears that there were two sisters, Jane and Ann Taylor, both born in London, England, about 1782. Early in life Jane showed great aptitude for verse writing, which was shared by her older sister, Ann. They collaborated and during the years printed many mortal songs. It is in the Original Poems that the song, 'My Mother' appears, and is attributed, not to Jane, but to Ann Taylor."

For those who treasure the old classics, we give this information, and again reproduce that wonderful poem, "My Mother."

four bells in the forenoon watch, or, in other words, 10 a. m. It was a bull whale, out for a morning feed, and was accompanied by a number of cows, all cruising in the same direction as the Memphis but at slower speed.

"There She Blows."

When the lookout called sharply the old fanner cried, "There she blows, broad on the starboard bow!" Ensign William Krieg, officer of the deck, hastily sent a telephone message to the mainmast, and the lookers to the bridge in record time, and had a fine view of May Dick's brother of the sea. The bull wallowed along in the offing for nearly half an hour. He spouted every few seconds as the cows hovered near the sides of his master.

The mainmast said it was a fine sight, recalling his first trans-Atlantic voyage, which was in the Spirit of St. Louis. On that memorable occasion he saw a school of porpoises near hundred miles off Ireland, but didn't sight a whale at any time.

JORDAN PAINTED AS JEKYLL-HYDE

Richard W. Jordan, former itinerant preacher, who is on trial in Judge O. H. Howard's court under a charge of having conspired with Miss Ino G. Hughes, physician's secretary, to misappropriate funds from her employers, was painted as a man of two personalities Wednesday.

Led by Assistant Solicitor John Ludon, the state portrayed Jordan as a scheming, crafty and unscrupulous man who, while posing as a spiritual light, preyed upon the gullibility of Miss Hughes.

The defense, by placing physicians and friends and acquaintances of Jordan on the stand, attempted to show the defendant as the antithesis of everything the state had brought out by attempting to establish proof that he is a pitiful, irresponsible and deluded victim of circumstances.

Taking up her story where she left off Tuesday, Miss Hughes mounted the stand and, looking Jordan unflinchingly in the eyes, accused him of having preyed on her money until her income was exhausted and she was forced to pilfer funds from Doctors A. H. Bance and J. W. Landham, her employers.

Questioned by the state's counsel, Miss Hughes declared she had cut her expenses to a minimum to fit her supply Jordan's insatiable demands for cash, pointing out that she had lunched on Y. W. C. A. biscuits and had taken other radical measures to save money for the erstwhile preacher.

Miss Hughes stated she had turned over the entire sum of $2,922 to Jordan and that for eight years she has been continually in debt to an Atlanta loan firm through his drain on her resources.

Against this testimony to Jordan's peridy and crafty scheming, went the story of J. H. Jordan, the defendant's half-brother, who related something of his early history, stating that Jordan was struck over the head with a croquet mallet when a mere child and that since he had been subject to violent headaches and "queer" spells that led him into an excessive use of narcotics and alcohol.

The next witness for the defense was Dr. David B. Hawkins, who testified that he had examined Jordan two years ago and found him to be a victim of "senile dementia" and that a habitual use of morphine and whiskey had done much to aggravate this condition.

Miss Hughes pleaded guilty recently to charges of having taken $2,922 from her employers, her sentence being withheld pending the outcome of Jordan's trial.

Fifth Week's 'Right-Ad' Event Opens; Become a Contestant

Letters, poems, phrases and the like stand as good a chance of winning prizes as regular ads in The Constitution's $4,000 amateur ad-writing contest. Ads are merely selling thoughts or ideas on paper and contestants can present their ideas in any written form with an equal chance of winning one or more of the 364 prizes yet to be awarded.

Ad-writing is easy. Everyone has ideas about the stores he patronizes. By putting these thoughts on paper a person writes an ad. By writing about any or all of the 24 companies listed herewith a reader enters the amateur ad-writing contest.

Special prizes listed below are offered in addition to the $4,000 in cash and prizes being awarded by The Constitution. Like all other prizes, they will be awarded only to amateurs—people whose chances of winning are equal. Ideas alone will be considered, not the technical phrases of advertising. One hundred and twenty-one prizes will be awarded Monday. Without obligation, you can enter the contest now or any time, by merely sending your ideas to the "Right-Ad" editor.

Tips for contestants follow:

Howard Theater.
Here is what Venice Badders, 1247 Lucile avenue, S. W., has to say about the Howard in her ad:
"Comfort depends on trifles, but comfort is no trifle. The Howard offers all those trifles as well as the big things that combine to make the most weary of us comfortable. Cool, refreshing air, comfortable, roomy seats—an ideal place to relax and enjoy the best photoplays, 'stage productions'—'Wally' and his New Idea orchestra. Compliment your out-of-town guests by entertaining them at the Howard."

And this is what Belle Williams, 878 West End avenue, S. W., writes for the Rountree Trunk and Bag company:
"When birthdays and anniversaries come, let a gift of leather convey your sentiments. Everyone appreciates the beauty and usefulness of real leather. At Rountree's will be found a wide variety of articles to choose from, including billfolds, purses, ladies' handbags, picture frames, thermos bottles, traveling cases, etc."

M. Rich & Bros. Co.

Alleged Slayer Of Two Children Accuses His Wife

Valparaiso, Ind., June 8.—(AP)—Walter S. Scholl, 38, who has pleaded guilty to the murder of his two children, today began an effort to save himself from the electric chair by accusing his estranged wife, Mrs. Marguerite Scholl, of aiding in the homicides.

Scholl last Monday, in circuit court, changed his plea of not guilty to guilty, trusting his fate to Judge Grant Crumpacker rather than a jury, and today a hearing upon which the defense will seek clemency, was opened.

D. E. Kelly, attorney for the confessed slayer, in his opening statement to Judge Crumpacker, declared the defense would endeavor to show that Scholl's wife, stepmother of the children, Vivian, 8, and Donald, 6, was a co-conspirator and aide in the murders.

Mrs. Scholl now is living in Chicago. She has been separated from her husband several months and is suing him for divorce. Shortly after his arrest, she stated she would "stand by" her husband, but later denounced him when he pleaded not guilty.

In what was introduced today as Scholl's confession, obtained by Chicago police where he was arrested, the reason for the crime was Scholl's dependency because of his inability to find his wife and his helplessness in taking care of the children.

Two of Scholl's companions at a Gary boarding house testified he freely discussed his marital difficulties with them and seemed eager to become reconciled with his wife.

Rome Names Airport "Nungesser-Coli" Field After French Fliers

Rome, Ga., June 8.—(AP)—Announcement was made today that Rome's recently purchased airport has been named Nungesser-Coli field in honor of the two intrepid French aviators who were lost in their attempted non-stop flight from Paris to New York. The formal christening will be held at an early date.

Experts have declared the airport to be a natural landing field, which will have four runways now nearing completion. It is 800 by 1,100 feet and level.

JUNE 18

Two years ago, the affiliation which made possible your Atlanta Temple of Commerce at Peachtree and Ellis streets, was consummated.

Starting Monday, June 13th, we will celebrate, for one week, the second anniversary of the affiliation with a series of special sales of timely merchandise, at such low prices that those who avail themselves of the great savings will obtain most phenomenal values.

All thought of profits are forgotten during this momentous week. It is to attract the favorable attention of our old customers, and to make new ones, that the exceptional offerings are made.

The giant links which encircle two of the nation's leading department stores... one in New York, the other in Atlanta... are but symbols of the combined strength of the establishments which they circumscribe.

The affiliation of Davison-Paxon Co., of Atlanta, with R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., of New York, was the result of vision, and the desire for expansion, on the part of both.

One was seeking a connection for extending its vast operations, the other sought to fortify and strengthen its relations in the rapidly growing South.

Thus was forged the links which girdle two mighty enterprises, and cause them to function as one.

The effect which this affiliation has on the purchasing power of your dollars, is to secure for you greater values for your money... more and better merchandise for your dollars.

Evidence of this fact will be especially obvious during our great second Anniversary Sale, June 13th to 18th—AFFILIATION WEEK.

The modern methods of retail distribution have become scientific in their application. Merchandising has been elevated to a much higher plane.

Macy's, for instance, who in 1926 did a volume of more than 76 million dollars, cash; have developed a great research department for the study of conditions which affect raw material markets, manufacturing conditions, employment conditions, and the money market. They are able to determine, sometimes two years in advance, what the probable increase or decrease will be in the cost of merchandise.

This marvelous laboratory of merchandising information enables Macy's to serve several stores as easily as one, just as a huge medical laboratory makes observations for the benefit of the medical profession.

Also, Macy's has built up an organization reaching all parts of the world for purchasing merchandise. With almost unlimited resources and tremendous outlets for goods, puts them in position, with their affiliated stores, to buy merchandise for a great deal less than would otherwise be possible.

The many millions of dollars that flow through Macy's, of New York, the additional millions sold through their affiliated store in Toledo, Ohio; and the other millions distributed through Davison-Paxon Co., in Atlanta, represents purchasing power and distributing outlets of such huge proportions that the world markets are immediately accessible to our army of affiliated buyers.

These benefits, the result of our affiliation with Macy's, are at the disposal of this store to give to the people of Atlanta and the South, advantages in lowered prices on desirable merchandise that no other store in this section of the country can equal.

Therefore, this Davison-Paxon Co. Temple of Commerce means to Atlanta just what Marshall Field & Co. does to Chicago; Wanamaker's to Philadelphia; Macy's to New York.

With a store building that would do credit to any city in America, and our unbounded faith in the continued growth and development of Atlanta and the South, we are justified in visioning a retail mart in this city, exceeded in volume of sales by only a very few stores in the entire country.

But only with your support can we crystallize this ambition. We are here to serve you with all the resources of the greatest retail organization in America, but its operation, its success, its very existence, depend upon the support it gets from the buying public.

WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Student Communities.

For many hundreds of years the University of Paris has attracted students from all over Europe, and today the attendance at the lectures of the Sorbonne is more cosmopolitan than ever. There was a lapse perhaps in the early part of this century when German science and institutions of learning attracted the world's students, but the war has ended that monopoly. Paris university life is indeed in some respects going back to something of the habit of the middle ages, when residential colleges, each housing a certain number of different nationalities, existed side by side with French residential foundations and with that larger body of students lodging here and there in pleasant inns and hotels.

The problem is a big one. It is so big and so acute that too much earnest and thoughtful consideration, without political partisanship, cannot be given it.

HONOR WORTHILY ACCORDED.

The international convention of Kiwanis is in annual session in Memphis.

At the session today Henry C. Heinz, of Atlanta, will be elected to the presidency of that organization.

The nominating committee decided upon the Atlanta over all competitors at its meeting Tuesday.

The new president is one of the best known citizens of Atlanta, a son-in-law of Asa G. Candler, Sr., a banker, and an active worker in all worthwhile civic affairs.

His promotion to the presidency necessarily calls for a new treasurer, and this responsibility will fall upon R. A. Crossman, of Omaha.

The honor—and it is a great honor—that will be bestowed upon Mr. Heinz today will be worthily awarded. The Kiwanis organization stands for progress. It stands for the higher ideals of life. It is opposed to everything that is either unsound or reactionary.

In Georgia the Kiwanis clubs have vigorously backed a state bond issue for paved highways as against the present county bond plan, based upon local ad valorem taxes, and which plan is naturally responsible for a checker-board system of road building.

Atlanta and Georgia are proud that one of the city's and state's outstanding citizens has been accorded this great trust and responsibility.

At a luncheon meeting of the extension committee of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday a committee was appointed to extend a personal invitation, to Captain Charles A. Lindbergh to visit Atlanta as a guest of the city, and to be the honor guest at a great aeronautical dinner to be given jointly by the trade organization and the President's club.

The committee will visit Washington and extend the invitation upon his arrival there.

This is in line with The Constitution's suggestion made the morning after the intrepid aviator's landing in Paris.

The people of Atlanta not only want the privilege of honoring the first conqueror of the Atlantic in a heavier-than-air flying ship, but they are proud of Candler field, proud of the prospects of the city becoming a great air port, and proud of the young American and his sturdy monoplane, and want them to land together where the other hero, Chamberlain, and his plane, the Columbia, landed several months ago.

Every citizen in Atlanta should cooperate with the extension committee in its undertaking to have Captain Lindbergh visit the city, not as a lecturer, or a chautauqua star, but as a great American who has honored his country and brought a new glory to his flag.

The Wilmington, N. C., Star has just issued its Annual Beach Edition, devoted largely to the resort features of the wonderful beaches around Wilmington. The edition is most attractive, reflecting credit upon its new publisher, R. P. Page, general manager of The Star. Mr. Page, with his brother, Eugene Page, still publisher of The Columbus Ledger, acquired The Star several months ago—one remaining in Columbus and the other going to The Star, where he has infused new life into one of the oldest of the daily newspapers of this section.

A one-cent gallon tax on gasoline for school purposes in Florida scrambles the old proverb: "He runs so others may read."

Prize Cocktail.

In Vienna the International Bar-masters' union has just been holding a contest to discover a prize cocktail. We learn from an English newspaper, and of one hundred and thirty-seven entries the winning potion was a candidate called "Valencia," which was entered from the town of Essen, Germany. The paper remarks: "It is like beating swords into ploughshares to think of the once notorious headquarters of the Krupp industry turning a milder fame as the producer of the modern equivalent of man as a contribution to civilization most people would regard as a cocktail to cold steel. And as a matter of fact the 'Valencia' sounds rather a mild and ladylike compound, for it is composed of just orange bitters, orange juice, and apricot brandy. In spite of its reformed character, somehow one would have expected something a little more ferocious as the prize cocktail from Essen, something called a 'Big Bertha,' perhaps, and consisting of equal parts of proof spirit, nitroglycerine, and T. N. T." The English editor ought to come to America for even more explosive recipes.

Peaceful Persuasion.

In Pekin we read, mourners lay on the trammels as a protest against the policy of the Peking Tramway company in paying compensation to the relatives of a man fatally injured by a street car. But they were chided away by the police, who caused the Manchester Guardian to bring to memory the case in 1906 when there was a great street car strike in Cairo. On the first day of the strike the tramway company ran a volunteer service with considerable success. Then a genius discovered that it was unavailing. He had a better idea. He had a prayer until he had prayed for at least four hours. Accordingly the Moslem tramway strikers brought out their prayer books and Korans and prostrated themselves on the trammels in relays. This, of course, stopped all the traffic, and after four days and nights of prayer the tram company directors gave in to the demands, which were moderate enough, and yet another victory was recorded to the glory of Allah and the honour of the prophet.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

St. Louis, Mo.

What do you think will be the outcome for Christians who at one time were on the best of terms of friendship but eventually fell out, and now never even acknowledge each other when they meet?

This has occurred in a family of active church members known to me. I often wonder if such persons ever reach heaven in view of their experiences here below, and how those experiences may affect their conduct in the celestial city.

The rule of the Master is the sole determinative in these unhappy divisions. There is no heaven for a hating heart, whether here or hereafter. We must be purged of our enmities and reconciled to our brother before we can enter the kingdom of peace and joy, for the perfection of which the outward paradise is symbolic.

It is unwise to predict in detail the state of those who enter the life of sin, for the law of affinity suggests that only those who have the spirit of Christ can find a place in that divine and goodly heaven, and goodness which is described as heaven.

Unforgiveness is moral insanity. It poisons the soul and corrupts the will. Its black shadows prevent the spirit's radiant life and make it blind to the beautiful vision. Hence the breast purged of its virus has no capacity for future blessedness.

Atlanta Must Keep

Abreast of Water and

Sewerage Demands

Editor Constitution: Ever since a boy I have been noticing the wonderful growth of Atlanta, to which city Atlanta has always been very close.

I am a frequent visitor to Atlanta now and I have been very impressed with its development.

I wonder, however, if it is keeping up with two of the most important functions of city government to wit: water and sewerage facilities.

A city must not only build to meet existing demands in these vital matters, but it must construct to meet the demands of the future, especially in this case of a fast growing city like Atlanta.

Are you doing it with your waterworks?

Are you doing it with your sewerage system?

You are building so as to dispose of your sewage as provided by law and so as not to hurt the fellow "down the creek?"

I do know, however, that this is a matter to which a great city like Atlanta should give its closest attention.

JOE HODGSON.

MAYOR APPROVES SCHOOL VOTE PLAN

Mayor I. N. Ragdale Wednesday completed signing all papers coming from the councilmanic session held Monday. Included in those passed is a proposed charter amendment abolishing the present board of education and providing election of another council on recommendations of ward delegations from the respective wards.

The measure also provides that the 20 per cent minimum of the city's revenue be abrogated and that the mayor and city council provide allocations for school purposes as it does for other divisions of the government, based on a budget offered by the board of education. It makes a further condition that the mayor and the chairman of the school committee of city council be ex-officio members of the new board, and gives the mayor veto power over all school expenditures.

The proposals will be submitted to Fulton and DeKalb county representatives in the Georgia legislature with a request that the measures be passed. Ten days after the governor signs the amendment, in the event of its passage, the present school board would be automatically abolished, and council would be empowered to fill their places selecting the new board from a list of nominations by the respective ward delegations in city council.

OUR CAPITAL PERISCOPE

by Sam W. Small

Washington, June 8.—Senator Harris, returning from the flood areas, will be in the capital for a fortnight before returning to Atlanta. In the state capital he will observe the proceedings of the general assembly while it is in session and give to the state a full federal information that will aid them in legislation. Senator Harris is so fully conversant with departmental operations in Washington that his aid in many forms of information will be of undoubted value to the members of the legislature.

Robert S. Barrett, son of Rev. R. S. Barrett, once dean of St. Luke's Cathedral in Atlanta, and Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, has given to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tennessee, $5,000 to establish a scholarship in memory of his father; and Mrs. Robert S. Barrett, his wife, has given the like sum of $5,000 to establish a scholarship in memory of her father, Rev. Dr. Tullis C. Tupper, former rector of St. Philip's church in Atlanta and the first chaplain of the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

The Daughters of the American Revolution are calling upon their membership throughout the nation to promote a general celebration of Flag Day, next Tuesday, June 14. Chapter regents are urged to ask the mayors of their respective cities to proclaim the significance of the day and request the display of the flag upon public and private buildings in appropriate ways. They are also urged to arrange some ceremony in the schools, or other places, wherein both the children and the grown up can honor the national emblem.

Rev. G. W. Davis Warns Against False Optimism

With a warning against false optimism, Rev. George W. Davis, noted Pacific coast evangelist, opened an evangelistic campaign Wednesday night at the Gospel Tabernacle on Capitol avenue.

"There are those," he said, "who rest in the optimistic belief that the world will continue to become better and better, but God will judge sin in His own time and will crush corruption." The historic catastrophes of the Bible, he declared, give the lie to the statement that the world will continue in a placid state toward the second coming of Christ.

The minister will speak this afternoon, and tonight at 7:30 o'clock he will preach upon the unique topic, "What Time Is It?"

During his ministry on the Pacific coast Dr. Davis has organized and built large churches at Los Angeles, Glendale, Pasadena and Long Beach, Cal. Revival services at the Gospel Tabernacle will continue through next Sunday.

A CRY IN THE NIGHT.

Alan took the check, glanced at it mechanically, and then—with comment—tore it into shreds, while Cristina, aghast at such a proceeding, gave a shriek of dismay.

"Rather than I should benefit, you do that!" she cried. "Oh, but you are a wicked and cruel and heartless man. First you try to murder your little son—"

"Be silent," Alan thundered. "How dare you say such a thing?"

"Because it is true. And have you not just proved your wickedness? Or perhaps you are mad. Yes, only a madman would tear up money so. How long do you think my father would have to slave to make so much money as you have just destroyed as though it were a piece of dirty paper?"

"That's exactly what it was—a piece of dirty paper," Alan said, with an angry snarl. "And I am not interested in your father's earnings. This doesn't concern him or you."

"It concerns me and Giovanni. I am your wife," Cristina stamped her foot. "Next you will try to murder me—"

"Be quiet, will you? My God, if I'm not already mad, I soon will be."

Alan's face twitched, and he passed a weary hand over it. He longed to question her about Piers' visits, but that would be climbing down to her level, and he wasn't prepared for such a descent.

And Cristina, on her side, was wary of saying too much about Piers and their conversation. She didn't want to provoke quarrel between the two men lest Alan should be worsted, which, in her opinion, would be lowering to her own dignity. So Alan was left to wonder what had happened and what motives lay behind the presentation of that check. It might be, and seemed reasonable, that Sophy had told Piers she did not want to continue the sittings and that he had come up here to explain or apologize on her behalf. She had said at San Remo that she did not feel equal to going on with them.

He took his pipe out into the garden, where it was unusual for Cristina to follow him unless she were specially invited, and tonight Alan was certainly in no mood to invite her.

She was right about one thing—dead right. He did, indeed, want her out of the way. Why on earth should she so suddenly become disturbing and malicious along with it? For years he had scarcely thought of her as his wife, and she had never minded before. He had come and gone as he pleased, and for all Cristina had shown anxiety it might have been that each time he went away he took with him a woman companion. She had never questioned, never shown the least sign of jealousy or curiosity on the subject. He imagined that the fact that he never had done so had nothing to do with the present situation. Out of the blue Cristina had grasped the whole significance of his plot and was now set upon frustrating it. That she had seen him with Sophy in the arms might have a little to do with her cleverness, he had to admit, but surely it didn't account for everything.

Fuming, he tramped to and fro along the narrow ledge, limping a little, but determined to get the stiffness out of his joints. And he, too, marked the lights of the Villa Mona and wondered what might be going on down there.

The night was very still, broken only at those intervals when the clock in the Old Town clanged out the passing of time. There was scarcely a breath of air, not enough even to rustle the dusty palms. Once a laden mule went clattering down the path by the wall, followed by the shrill "Ale-boy!" of its guardian; and again, for a moment, a bird with a fierce chatter—probably a nightjar—set up a brief but raucous clamor. But these few interruptions only intensified the deep, breathless silence. Monte Nero over there . . . like a monstrous black beast crouched against the skyline . . . the old quarry, where it was by the mercy of God that both Alan and Giovanni were not lying at this moment . . . overhead the mysterious stars.

The futility of life, thought Alan; the utter meaninglessness of everything. Why did he want Sophy to such desperation? Where was the meaning in that? There was no particular excellence in her any more than there was in himself. Sophy had none of Cristina's hardy virtues; and he, this . . . heaven, was not like Piers Tancred.

This determination to get what was denied him!

Yes, it was so puzzling why it should be denied. He didn't want to hurt Cristina; he merely wanted her to leave him alone and let him go his own way. Yet if she elected to stand in his way too persistently he might have to hurt her, but never before he had dreamed that she could be hurt in that particular fashion. In spite of her race and primitive upbringing Cristina had always seemed to him singularly free from the trammels of sex.

As far as Alan knew, he had only one life to live, and how dangerously near it had been and still was to being spoiled. He remembered it was by reason of Cristina's devoted nursing during his serious illness that he was still alive. One might say he owed his life to Cristina. Oh, dear heaven, what an eternal obligation! Was his very life, then, Cristina's?

Yes, it was all sheer futility . . . to others, Cristina doubtless remembered his obligation and was getting ready to chuck it into his face. What a compelling hand on him; clinging and heavy.

In two, three hours, Sophy and he were due to meet . . . and slip away together out of this place forever, yet since the accident in the quarry pool Alan had felt that a certain unreality tinged his relations with Sophy. But of course it was all planned, the little car was waiting down in the garage by the station, his two suit cases were there, and all of his practical affairs as regarded the Casa Poverina were settled. Yet now, within so short a time of departure, it seemed unreal that he was going away with Sophy, never to be parted from her again in this world until death overtook one of them.

God, what was that? Alan stood as though stricken for the briefest fraction of a moment, then rushed to the edge of the little cliff garden, and stared down at the light of the Villa Mona.

A woman's voice, a cry; Sophy's voice, he was certain.

Afterward Alan had no memory at all of how he got to the Villa Mona. For he knew he might have spread his wings and flapped down over the face of the cliff. Actually, of course, he must have pursued a less direct route, for the mile path, then along behind the Doria, and finally past the washerwomen's place to the back gate of the villa. At the very least it would have taken him 10 minutes. Yet, suddenly, without knowing how it was done, he was there, hammering with clenched fists at that unresponsive gate.

The noise he created was pandemonium, yet it seemed ages before the gate was opened. First came an uncertain fumbling with the bolt and key then the loose rattle of the handle, and finally Alan, in his impatience, turned it himself and found Lucia, the Tancred's cook, on the other side, staring a little and trying to steady herself against the wall.

Savagely he demanded of her to be told what had happened, but the woman was almost incoherent.

Her mistress? Dumbly Lucia shook her head. Apparently she had not heard that scream, and it was certain that she had no idea what might have occasioned it. Alan switched on an arc light over the pergola and dragged her into the glare. He thought she was drunk, but almost immediately revised his opinion. Drugs, not drink, had reduced the cook to this helpless, imbecile state. Even as he was questioning her she fell heavily into one of the pergola chairs and with a groan, relapsed into unconsciousness.

"Nothing—nothing, signor."

I heard only a great noise at the gate. . . . I opened the gate. . . . I am very ill, signor. That was all he got out of her.

Miss Deuell Weds Mr. Riker In New York Church Ceremony

New York, June 8.—The wedding of Miss Eleanor Deuell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin Deuell, of Pittsburgh, and Andrew Lawrence Riker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lawrence Riker, of Fairfield, Conn., was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Little Church Around the Corner, the Rev. Randolph Ray officiating.

The ceremony took place before an altar decorated with butterfly roses and French blue hydrangeas. Tropical tree-ferns accented the panel of the aisle pink in the blue French hydrangeas and blue-toned peonies, which adorned chancel. While the guests assembled Franklin Coster played "Liebestraum" on the organ. The hour of 4:30 Miss Deuell's Tabor sang, "At Dawning" and "Because." The bride was given away by her father, and at that moment Miss Tabor sang "Oh, Perfect Love."

The bride's gown, which was designed by her sister, Miss Dorothy Deuell, was of sweeping ivory satin in court bouffant style extending in a long train, over which fell the rose-point veil of family tradition. From a regal coronet of rose-point an aged piece of the same lace swung gracefully, making a delicate cape. The sleeves of finest net held curving heavy lace at the wrist, which extended over the bride's hands. A front panel of rare old rose-point swung from the edges of the skirt fell gradually away into the long train. The bride's shower bouquet was of white orchids with a pink tinge, orange blossoms and sweetest roses.

Miss Dorothy Deuell was maid of honor and wore a gown fashioned in Du Barry rose taffeta in extreme bouffant style. Long sleeves joined a yoke of matching chiffon. A large star of rose-hair, adorned with a large chignon flower and a bouquet showered sprays of French hydrangeas.

Missionary Hour Closes Second Day At Baptist Meet

Forsyth, June 8.—The Wednesday evening session of the 45th annual convention of the Baptist Women's Missionary union, in session at Besse Tift college, closed with the missionary hour, presided over by Dr. T. W. Ayers, for many years a medical missionary to China. Dr. Ayers is one of the most widely known and best loved figures in the Baptist denomination of the entire south.

Mrs. J. W. Shepard, of Brazil, Mrs. Walter Jones, of Brazil, and Dr. D. F. Stamp, of China, told graphically and feelingly of the work and conditions on their respective fields, and came earnestly to Georgia Baptists "come up to the help of the Lord" in this peculiarly crucial hour.

Dr. Will H. Houghton, pastor of the Baptist tabernacle, Atlanta, and representative of the home mission board, gave the address of the evening. Always a forceful and eloquent speaker, Dr. Houghton's earnestness carried conviction, as he, too, presented the cause of missions as the God-ordained tasks of the church and of the individual Christian.

Wednesday afternoon's session was given over to a close-up view of the working methods brought to bear in the union's various departmental fields.

Mrs. Green's Speech. Mrs. A. B. Green, principal, told of the splendid growth and manifest Christian spirit of the student body of the Mary P. Williamson school. It is significant to note that from one mountain community 17 pupils are enrolled this year, whereas last year there were only two. Recently diplomas were issued to a graduating class of 30 members.

Mrs. J. C. Lanier, Georgia trustee for the training school, Louisville, stated that Georgia's representation of students this year is unusually low, a lamentable fact that should be remedied. Mrs. Lanier announced that the union has scholarships, providing actual expenses per school session, ready to be awarded to any young woman wishing one and presenting the necessary testimonials of qualification. The convention heard with pleasure the announcement that a scholarship had recently been awarded to Miss Vannie Mathis, of Sandersville, a recent graduate from the Bible institute, New Orleans. Georgia, attending the training school during the past year, was Miss Evelyn Lewis, of Cartersville, and Miss Mary Lou Conwell, of Bowman.

The report of the Southwestern Training school, Fort Worth, Texas, was given by Mrs. Ben Thompson, of Madison, member of the Sheffield Scientific school, Yale university, class of 1922. Mr. Riker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lawrence Riker, of Fairfield, Conn., his father being one of the most prominent financiers of the east.

Miss Effie Tribble Gives Theater Party. Miss Effie Tribble entertained several members of the graduating class of Commercial High school at a theater party at the Erlanger Tuesday, in compliment to her niece, Miss Florence Vogel. Ten was served after the play in the new Nunnally Tea Room.

The guests included Misses Tribble, Florence Vogel, Agnes Hames, Lillian Morgan, Ida Sue Medlock, Hazel Strickland, Hattie Gardner, Dorothy Floyd and Mrs. Ernest Smith.

Immediately following the stewardship report came the reading of the winning W. W. A. title story in the recent contest projected by the union for the young people's organizations of the state. This story was written and read by Miss Laura Queen, Augusta, and indicated both talent and deep Bible research.

The Margaret Fund. The Margaret Fund for the providing of scholarships in American schools for the children of missionaries, was presented by Mrs. Frank Burney, of Waynesboro, and southern union chairman. This fund has reached its tenth birthday, and the first gift of $10,000 has now become $40,000. More than 400 scholarships have been granted, and nearly $74,000 have been given in this way during these 10 years. Mrs. Burney stated that the value of these scholarships has now been increased to $300.

The three Margaret scholarship students in Georgia now are Margaret Fowler, Argentine, at Besse Tift; James Fowler, Argentine, at Mercer; and Grace Dunstan, Brazil, at State Normal, Athens.

The feature of the morning hour was the annual address of the president, Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville. Generous in spirit, forceful in character, and magnetic in personality, Mrs. Neel, during her presidency of 16 years, has won the love and esteem of Baptist women and honor and admiration of all who know her. Her annual messages strike the keynote for the working theme of the union year. Wednesday, Mrs. Neel's discourse was based upon Isaiah's prophetic promise to Israel that "they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint; and was an urge to higher faith and stronger courage in preparation for the drive that will follow the launching of the ruby anniversary campaign.

The official report of Mrs. A. F. McMahon, corresponding secretary-treasurer, showed 348 new organizations for the year, making a total of 2,049, of which 1,130 are young people's organizations. Of these societies 1,853,218.88 for the cooperative program; $89,027.42 for other objects; $10,246.14, Christmas offering for foreign missions; $7,725.31, thank offering for home missions. Indications are that the contributions for women amounted to a sum much exceeding this, but many of these gifts being paid through the churches and not being designated "W. M. U. credit." To avoid a recurrence of this situation Mrs. McMahon urged that when contributing to the program of missions through the church, women mark their gifts, credit to W. M. U., and that W. M. U. records be kept accurately by church treasurers, and that union funds be so designated when sent to Dr. Cree, state treasurer. The report of Mrs. B. L. Buzz, auditor, followed and corroborated the report of the treasurer.

Miss Julia Allen, young people's secretary and college correspondent, was enthusiastic in her commendation of the churches and not being designated "W. M. U. credit." To avoid a recurrence of this situation Mrs. McMahon urged that when contributing to the program of missions through the church, women mark their gifts, credit to W. M. U., and that W. M. U. records be kept accurately by church treasurers, and that union funds be so designated when sent to Dr. Cree, state treasurer. The report of Mrs. B. L. Buzz, auditor, followed and corroborated the report of the treasurer.

The period given over to the reports of the seven divisional vice presidents was among the most vitally interesting of the convention. Into the heads of these women is given the supervision of the actual carrying out of the working plans set forth annually by the union. Each vice president gave appreciative credit for the year's achievements to the faithful efforts of her associational superintendents.

Miss Gardner Weds Mr. Baker At Church Ceremony in Decatur

Of interest to a large circle of relatives and friends was the wedding of Miss Estelle Gardner and Arthur Branch Baker, which took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church in Decatur, with Dr. J. W. Quillian officiating.

The church was elaborately decorated with the seven branched candleabra, the palms and ferns forming a soft background for the floor baskets of white gladioli, which alternated with the blue beaded chiffron, holding tall white tapers. Miss Ulrich Green sang Schubert's "Serenade." Mrs. Joseph Bunch played Friml's "Twilight on the Marshes." The organ, also playing Mendelssohn's and Lohengrin's wedding marches.

Mrs. Murphy Candler, Jr., and John M. Brown, ushers, entered together. Next came a bride and groom, wearing gowns of white tulle, trimmed in hand-made satin flowers. They carried shower bouquets of pastel colored flowers.

Dr. James Pitman and Joseph Bunch, who were ushers, entered next, followed by Miss Georgiana Glenn, and Miss Catherine Shields, the other two bridesmaids, wearing pale green tulle, trimmed in hand-made satin flowers. They carried shower bouquets of pastel colored flowers.

After returning from their wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Baker will reside at 1105 Glenn street in Decatur. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. K. Glenn, of Greenville, S. C.; Miss Laura Barrett, Washington, D. C.; and Mrs. Leon Blair, Marietta; Mrs. H. M. McCullough, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Moss Moulton, Gadsden, Ala.; Mrs. W. E. Montgomery, St. Augustine, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Baker and George Baker, Macon; Mrs. Nancy Brightwell and Miss Emma Smith, Macon.

Little Mary Olive Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard, of Decatur, was the flower girl. She wore a frock of yellow tulle, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

The bride, who was met at the altar by the groom, and his best man, George Baker, entered with her father, Edward Lawson Baker, who gave her in marriage. She was a picture of girlish loveliness in her bridal robe of white satin, trimmed in rose point lace, having a court train of satin combined with chiffron.

Her tulle veil was arranged compact, with a ruffle across the front, and adjusted with orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a large bouquet of bride's roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home in North Candler street. Mrs. E. L. Gardner, the bride's mother, wore blue beaded chiffron, with a shoulder bouquet of pink roses, and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. A. M. Baker, the groom's mother, wore white crepe and she wore pink roses and very lilies.

Miss Laura Barrett kept the bride's book.

Mrs. Alfred Branch and Mrs. Hugh Fluke served punch.

Assisting the hostess in entertaining were Mesdames A. M. Baker, J. C. Gleason, Leon O'Neal, H. K. Glenn, Brooks Brown, Alice Wilson, Lena Fincher, Misses Myrtice and Carrie Brown.

The 1928 conventional year will be the 40th, or ruby anniversary, of the organization of the southern union. At the May convention in Louisville a campaign was launched for a worthy celebration of this year, emphasizing enlightenment, winning of souls and sacrificial giving—all in keeping with the spirit of courage and sacrifice symbolized by the blood-red ruby.

Mrs. Thompson Explains Talk. Mrs. Ben Thompson, of Madison, state chairman, with the assistance of picture slides, which added visual impression and strikingly illustrated the points of her talk, explained the task set as Georgia's goal in the ruby anniversary project. Georgia's aim is a total of 4,000 societies, which will present an approximate 40 per cent increase and necessitate the organization of 820 new societies, including all grades. Georgia's portion of the $4,000,000 financial goal fixed by the southern union will be $227,000, this sum including all gifts, both special and pledges.

The southern union slogan will be "a missionary organization in every Baptist church in the South." Georgia's battle cry will be "We can do it if we will." With 1,200 Baptist churches in the state without a woman's organization whatsoever, Georgia's quota of new societies should be easily reached.

Children's Matinee Program Announced. The Atlanta Better Films committee announces a carefully chosen program for the Saturday morning matinee which begins at 9:30 o'clock with the admission at 10 cents for children of school age and under, and 25 cents for adults. The matinee slogan is "Every picture suited to children will be shown at the Children's Saturday Morning Matinee."

The youngest of the matinee audiences will be charmed this week with Baby Peggy in "Little Red Riding Hood," while the children of the older grades, and junior and senior high, will enjoy Tom Moore in "The Song and Dance Man." This is a new picture never before shown at the matinees, and is full of life and action. It comes here recommended by the Macon Better Films committee.

The prolog number will be given under the auspices of Miss Evelyn Donahoe.

Mrs. John G. Courtney, chaplain, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. M. R. Rolston, Mrs. Ernest Brown and Mrs. John Kinsey and other members of the Better Films committee Saturday, together with 10 boys and 10 girls Scouts.

Misses Thomas And LeConte To Be Honored

Mrs. George E. King will entertain at an elaborate tea Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at her home on Peachtree street, the occasion to honor her granddaughters, Misses Ida Suzanne Thomas and Nisbet LeConte.

The hostess will be assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Irving Thomas, Mrs. J. T. Williams, Mrs. Hal Hart and Mrs. Julian Thomas.

Receiving with the young honor guests will be Misses Harriet Humphries, Margaret Phillips, Martha Williams, Martha Kays, Bernadette Clark and Clara McConnell.

Two hundred members of the school set have been invited to meet Miss Thomas and Miss LeConte.

Mrs. Huguley Elected West Point Club President.

Mrs. E. E. Huguley was elected president of the West Point club, and Mrs. W. A. Callaway first vice president at the initial meeting at the Atlanta Athletic club held Wednesday morning, June 8.

Further election of officers takes place at the next meeting which is called for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, in the dining room of the Athletic club. All West Point women are urged to attend the meeting which will last one hour.

Mrs. C. W. McClure, of Atlanta, a prominent member of the national organization of Delphians, welcomed the 37 representative southern women into Atlanta's civic life. A definite plan for constructive activity was outlined by Mrs. McClure and was favorably received. If this plan is finally adopted the club will have a study group known as the Fort Tyler Delphian chapter, and will take its place in the national order as a district meeting of the Confederacy and the last battle of the 60's in which West Point figured so prominently.

That at least 60 Atlanta residents are personal representatives of the illustrious period is a matter of no small pride, and this club recognizes its place in the social and cultural life of the great city of its adoption.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and high basket-vases filled with summer flowers of pastel shades.

Single cathedral candles were placed among the palms. Down the aisle were five-branched candelabra, tied with tulle and showered with ribbon.

The bride entered the church to the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and the recessional was Mendelssohn's wedding march.

Bridal Attendants.

Mrs. Julia Gordon Pimell, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and entered alone. She wore a beautiful creation of pink georgette made over pink satin, being caught at the waist with a soft bow and carrying an arm bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Jessie McLeod, maid of honor, was gowning in orchid georgette, the waist line being caught at the side with a rhinestone buckle. She also carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. Cecil Triner, Cecil Gordon and Harold Miner were the groomsmen.

Becky Thornton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Thornton, was the charming little flower girl, dressed in dainty blue. Carl Hunter, who gave her in marriage, was met at the altar by the groom and best man, Paul Gordon.

The bride was radiantly beautiful in her wedding gown of white georgette over satin and trimmed with exquisite hand-made flowers. Her veil was caught to her head by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies. The bride's only ornament was a strand of lovely pearls.

Travelers Double Cracker Final Game, 5 to 2

Locals Begin Series With Chicks Today

Pug Cavet's Offerings So Much Pie for Gullible Travelers Who Secure 10 Hits to 5 for Niehoff.

LITTLE ROCK, June 8.—"Rube" Robinson this afternoon broke the record for the number of times a pitcher has won from the same ball club—his own record—by tossing his hat on the field in front of the Atlanta Crackers at the start of the third and last game of the Little Rock-Atlanta series. The formality of playing nine innings of baseball, less the last half of the ninth, was gone through with to determine the score which turned out to be 5 to 2 for Little Rock. It might easily have been 5 to 0, but for a couple of unnecessary runs scored by the Crackers in their half of the ninth and charged against an error by the Little Rock defense.

By precisely how many games the "Rube" holds his record for control over the Atlanta Crackers isn't known at present in years. The spell of his cunning pitching that has the Crackers practically beaten before they start now is running its twelfth consecutive season, and in the 12-year span he probably hasn't lost as many as one game per season to Atlanta ball clubs.

For five innings the Crackers got only one hit, a single by Gilbert in the second inning, and the effect of that hit was promptly nullified when the "Rube" watched Gilbert take a long lead off first and shot the ball to Grimes who relayed it along the Oliver and the trapped Cracker third baseman was tagged at second base. "Pug" Cavet got the Crackers' next hit when, with two out in the seventh, he pushed a surprise ball back toward the box that caught the "Rube" unawares and went for a base hit. Frankie Zoeller showed a hint by immediately thereafter, for the third Atlanta hit. Two more hits in the ninth raised the Atlanta total to five.

"Red" Ostergaard's single in the second made on a punt was the Travelers' lone hit until "Mule" Washburn started off the fourth with a blow that he made good for a double.

It was a hoist over the infield that fell between Cuto, Zoeller and Haas, by a vigorous slide the "Mule" got to second base safely. Ray Grimes promptly exploded one of his best hits, a bounding drive to left center that by the rules of baseball justice should have been a home run, but which was held down by the first baseman who with one hand on the first base was able to hold it to a double. Washburn, of course, scored. Grimes, who had another long drive to right, hit Welch caught it so far out that Grimes was able to advance to third after the catch. Tom Gully, who had been dropped a couple of notches in the batting order, continued the two-base barrage with a liner to left that scored Grimes. Battle came foul to Schwab at first, but Eddie Ainsmith got the fourth double of the inning, another screaming drive to left. Robinson grounded to Gilbert for the third out.

More Hits.

In the eighth the Travelers developed more hitting power and added two runs, which made the situation much more comfortable for the home club and such of the constituency as had assembled at the ball park. With one out, Grimes added a few points to his batting average by getting a single to left that gave him two hits in four times at bat. Ostergaard made his day's record two out of three with a single to left. Gully, who had hit twice, knocked a hard chance to Rhee who took it and threw Ostergaard out at second. Tom beat the relay to Four-Base Knocks Feature Exciting Pastime Contest Before 40,000.

Yankee Stadium, N. Y., June 8.—Winning single from the bat of Little Ray Marchant, placed the gathering darkness in Yankee stadium along about supper time Wednesday and broke the spell of the season's most exciting ball game, in which the Yankees beat the White Sox, 12 to 11, in 11 innings.

Spaghetti went cold on the dinner tables of Little Italy while the admirers of "Poosh-up" Tony Lazzeri saw the husky Italian infielder hit three tremendous home runs, the last of which tied up the score in the ninth and saved the day for New York.

The White Sox, meanwhile, were hammering a quartet of Yankee twirlers for no fewer than 10 hits, including home runs by Bill Falk, Johnny Clancy and Bill Barrett.

The lead changed hands five times during the game, with the White Sox leading, 11 to 6, in the ninth, and the Yankees driving Red Faber from the box with a tremendous five-run rally in the tenth.

George Connerly was rushed to the rescue by Manager Ray Schalk when the Yankees still were two runs short of tying the score, but Tony Lazzeri came through with his third home run to greet the last Texan's arrival in the box, scoring Eddie Curd ahead of him.

The Sox scored three runs in the eighth, but the Yankees' lead was not shaken.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

Horses, Horses, Real Dark Ones.

With less than one week to elapse before 149 of the nation's best golfers tee off in an attempt to knock a few laurels from the brow of Robert Tyre Jones, the question of the hour is, "Can he repeat?"

To attempt to answer this question would be more than foolish; it would be suicide. If Bob Jones were a pitcher with a clean record of wins to his credit we might predict another victory. If he were a tennis player at the top of his glory we might predict a further triumph. But golf is just naturally something else.

Just for fun we have been submitting a verbal questionnaire to a number of golfers and enthusiasts with whom we come in contact from day to day. The answers are invariably as follows: "Sure, there isn't a golfer living who can beat Bob at medal play over 72 holes." Or, "It doesn't seem possible that he can continue to shoot phenomenal golf after a season of comparative rest. He will be well up around the top but he can't go through again this year. It just isn't human."

Pick your answer. We stand ourself in the position of the salesman interviewing the stuffering buyer. We want to agree with each one, as he answers our query. At a glance it does seem possible that Bob can continue and yet a cold calculation of the "dope" fails to reveal any amateur or professional who seems to threaten.

The trouble is that one never looks in the right direction for the contender. Last year at Scioto the wise birds picked several professionals who were given a good chance to beat Bob before the open started but not one selected Joe Turnesa, except as a third, fourth or fifth alternate. Just one prediction we feel safe in making—if Bob fails to come back to Atlanta with the national open crown for the third time he will be beaten by some golfer who is not "doped" to give him much competition.

The Saviour of Youth.

The Atlanta chapter of the American League has made another forward step in its effort to aid in the stimulation of athletics in Atlanta.

That organization has offered its aid to Sam Saltzman, head of the city Sandlot league, and will aid in every way to make this organization of young athletes a continued inspiration to the youth of the city.

The value of the Sandlot league cannot be reckoned in terms of dollars and cents. The organization has done much to change the unorganized and sometimes dangerous play of the youth of the city into an organized system of recreation, and it is the aim of the league to cooperate with Mr. Saltzman in his plans to enlarge the scope of the league to include swimming, track and other branches of sports not now included in the list.

Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock at Spiller's the Rinky-Dinks and the Tech High Terrors of the 135-pound class will play for the championship of their league in baseball and if there is anyone who doubts the value of these youngsters to play at the national pastime, let him come to Spiller's Saturday morning and be disabused.

Tony Lazzeri Hits 3 Homers In One Game

Yankee Pastime Comes Within One of Tying World's Record.

New York, June 8.—(AP)—Tony Lazzeri, Yankees' infielder, hit three home runs in today's game between New York and the Chicago White Sox, coming within one of tying the major league record for home runs in a single game held jointly by Robert Lowe of the Boston Nationals and Ed Delahanty of the Philadelphia Nationals, both of whom have hit four.

Lazzeri hit a homer with one on base in the second inning, one in the eighth with none on, and one in the ninth with one on, the last homer tying the score at eleven-all. He hit homers successively in his last two times up.

Regarding the activity of the Sandlot league, Mayor I. N. Ragsdale Wednesday paid a glowing compliment to Sam Saltzman, the director of activities in the boyhood athletic organization.

The mayor said: "I had the pleasure of receiving a call today from a delegation of enthusiastic young gentlemen representing the Sandlot league, who explained the activities of well-guided juvenile sport, giving its members under proper supervision, the opportunity to engage in many recreation and competition."

"Young minds seeking diversion during the school vacation months are fortunate to find it in supervised clean, healthful athletics that will help to build up and strengthen them physically and mentally."

"I wish to compliment the Sandlot league and those assisting it, and I hope the boys will receive the liberal encouragement which their endeavors deserve."

Evans Popular.

Chick Evans, one of the most popular golfers of them all, goes out early in the afternoon, paired with George Gadd, the stout Britcher.

Bill Melhorn, with Pat Doyle as his partner, and Gene Sarason, who plays with Frank Minch, of the latter part of it will provide the main interest of the morning.

The English professionals have been scattered throughout the field of starters, some playing in the forenoon and others in the afternoon.

Golf galleries, especially at an open championship, are peculiarly like sheep. They are fickle, but they start out with their old favorites each year. Thus, after Bobby Jones is well out on the long Oakmont course, part of his gallery will drift back to watch Johnny Farrell and Leo Diegel come along.

Big Day.

It will take the entire day for the one round, and the same procedure with the starting times reversed, will be followed on the following day. Then the sixty golfers with the lowest scores will continue playing and the rest will become spectators.

Two rounds are played Thursday, low gross for the four rounds winning the championship. Loomed dangerously before it lit a low regarded with small concern. Most golf championships are won upon the putting greens, and the visiting Ryder cup professionals couldn't put peas into a post hole on their showing to date. Moreover, the Britishers are hastening higher and sons in purchase of the old dollar in exhibition matches instead of concentrating on the coming championship.

Garden and will duplicate the features of Madison Square Garden but will be larger. Accommodations will be provided for all indoor sports.

It was indicated that Tex Rickard, New York promoter, was not connected with the corporation. Rickard announced some time ago that he planned to build an arena here.

Unbeaten 8 to England.

Kent, Conn., June 8.—(AP)—The undefeated Kent school crew was on its way to England today to participate in the Henley regatta. Sixteen boys, the headmaster, the Rev. F. H. Still, and G. Fred Hawkins, Jr., a manager, sailed from New York aboard the Berengaria.

While in England the boys will be the guests of Lord Beverbrook, who will provide the shells which the crew will use for practice and races.

A race with Eton is expected to be arranged for the crew during the week before the Henley regatta.

LOVETT HEARING AGAIN DELAYED

The extradition hearing of Ralph B. Lovett, one of the 12 men indicted for the murder of Bert Donaldson, investigator for Solicitor John A. Boykin's office, which was set for Friday in Little Rock, Ark., has been postponed to a later date, according to a telegram received Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Boykin from John E. Martineau, governor of Arkansas.

This telegram was received just a short time before E. A. Stephens, assistant solicitor general, Ralph Riley, criminal investigator for the solicitor's office, and Assistant Attorney General T. R. Gress, of Georgia, were about to catch a train for the Arkansas city, as representatives of this state at the hearing.

Just when the hearing will be heard was not revealed in the telegram, which read as follows:

Little Rock, June 8, Honorable John A. Boykin, Atlanta, Ga.

Account of conference with president next Friday necessary to postpone Lovett hearing. Will rest and advise.

(Signed) John E. Martineau, governor.

In reply to this message Solicitor General Boykin sent one in which he urged that an early hearing be granted.

One Hearing Given.

Lovett, who was arrested some time ago in Arkansas, has already been given one hearing at Little Rock. Because of conflicting evidence produced at that hearing the governor of Arkansas postponed it to a future date. Friday had been set as the time for this second hearing. Lovett claims that he was in Michigan at the time of the Donaldson murder.

RAWLINGS WILL UPHELD BY JUDGE AT SANDERSVILLE

Sandersville, Ga., June 8.—(Special.)—The suit filed in Washington superior court last March against the executors of the estate of the late Dr. William Rawlings to prevent the probate of his will, was dismissed here today by Judge R. N. Hardeman.

Dr. Rawlings, who died last November, left an estate valued at approximately $250,000. The bulk of the estate was left to his niece and nephew, Mrs. Thomas W. Gilmore and Dr. Fred B. Rawlings. When the will was filed, other relatives immediately filed their claims against probating same. At the March term of superior court the case was postponed until April and at that time was deferred until today.

It was stated that Dr. Rawlings took special pains to have his will written in a way that would stand the test of courts. According to the decision today, the doctor's wishes will be carried out.
